Do not fail to heed this. We have some old accounts and notes that are going to collect by law if not settled at once.

Best cold drinks in town at Marvin Bean's, such as ginger ale, pop, blood orange, champagne cider, and soda water.

Mr. Hockersmith is on hand and the work has begun on the Baptist Church, and will be pushed to a speedy completion.

Several valuable communications were crowded out this week owing to the pressure of other matter. They will appear next week.

Mr. W. H. Moore has moved into and taken possession of the Hartford House. Mr. Henry Griffin has moved into the house vacated by Mr. Moore.

S. A. Williams will open up a grocery store in one side of his large furniture store, in the near future. He will associate C. C. Bennett with him in this enterprise.

Dr. D. M. Everett has secured and furnished a dental office over H. W. Wines' jewelry store and is permanently located in Hartford. He is prepared to do all kinds of dentistry.

W. M. Acton, who is the leader of the Mt. Vernon singing was awarded the cane that was given to the leader of the best vocal class at the barbecue on last Saturday at Schroeder school house.

The colored Masonic Lodge of Hayti had a very creditable picnic at the Fair Grounds last Saturday. The procession was well arranged, and made a good appearance on the parade through town. The Greenville band was on hand, and furnished some excellent music. The Lodge did credit to its members.

Those who contemplate passing the summer months at some watering place will do well to go to the Ohio County Sulphur Springs. The medicinal properties of this water are unexcelled in the state. To the pleasure-seekers we would say, go to these springs and be royally entertained by Mr. and Mrs. David Morton.

Master Mack Murrell, Owensboro, Ky., who is spending the summer with the family of W. T. King of this place, made a trip to Sulphur Springs, a distance of 10 miles last Thursday, returning Saturday. This is the first time a bicycle trip has been made from here to the Springs, and this was made by a little boy. He went up to the Springs in two and a half hours.

The Hartford House is being thoroughly renovated from cellar to garret, and will soon be ready to receive guests. Col. W. H. Moore and his estimable wife will most certainly be able, with the many facilities the Hartford House has for entertaining, to give entire satisfaction to the traveling public. Give them a call when the house is opened, and be convinced of what we say.

A little boy of Republican parentage was down on the streets on last Friday during the parade. After the procession he went home and said to his parents that he was not a Republican any longer. The parents asked why he had changed his mind so much. "Because," said he, "I was down on the street during the procession, and what do you think, all the little Republican boys except me were niggers, and I ain't goin' to be a Republican any longer, no I ain't."

DELIGHTED DEMOCRATS.

THEY COME FROM ALL PARTS OF THE COUNTY

In Great Numbers and Show Their Fidelity to Democratic Principles by Welcoming the Speaker of the day in a Procession Two Miles Long.

Over Two Thousand Listen to the Exposition of Democratic Doctrine, and go Away Well Pleased.

A FIELD DAY FOR THE DEMOCRACY.

The Democrats of Ohio county have reason to feel proud of their success last Friday. The vast crowd that assembled in Hartford on that day to do honor to Democratic principles, were not from one precinct, but from every part of the county. They came early and in large numbers. Early in the morning, a good sized delegation, headed by the Hartford Cornet Band, left Hartford for Beaver Dam to meet Hon. John S. Rhea, Elector for the State at large, who was billed for a speech to the people of Ohio county. Before the train arrived at Beaver Dam, a crowd of enthusiastic Democrats had assembled to welcome Mr. Rhea. Morgantown, Cromwell, Seelye, Rosine, Horton Clubs were on hand to swell the procession, while the Rockport Club came into Beaver Dam fifty strong with flags and banners flying. Their large flag bore the inscription, "Cleveland and Thurman, Taylor and Wilson."

Mr. Rhea was met at the train by a committee on reception and royally received while the band played a stirring piece. The procession was then formed. First came thirty "peace cavalrymen" in uniform in charge of four marshals headed by Dr. John Mitchell as officer of the day, each of the marshals bearing flags. After them, came the Hartford Cornet Band, drawn by four mule bays gaily decorated with flags and banners. Next followed the speaker and reception committee in a carriage literally covered in bandanas and flags. After the speaker's carriage came a line of buggies and spring wagons, road wagons and horsemen, all decorated with flags and bandanas, making a gorgeous pageant nearly two miles long. Several of the Democratic clubs of the county were represented, prominent among which was the flowing flag of the Rockport club. At 11:15 o'clock, the procession entered Hartford and marched up Clay Street to Union, down Union to Mulberry, up Mulberry to Elm, out Elm to Market to the Fair Grounds. Crowds of patriotic ladies and gentlemen crowded the corners and sidewalks and cheered the procession as it passed. When the front of the procession reached the crossing of Market and Union Streets, those who had not yet passed, were compelled to wait and drop in behind once more and did not get to make the round of the town.

A free lunch was served at the Fair Grounds by the Hartford Democrats and the natural man well cared for before the hour for the speaking arrived. Mr. Rhea and the reception committee, dined with Hon. H. D. McHenry, after which they came out to the Fair Grounds headed by the thirty uniformed peace cavalry. As they approached the speaker's stand, cheer after cheer went up from that enthusiastic crowd of good natured Democrats.

Hon. H. D. McHenry was the first speaker, and as he arose, he looked over a crowd of more than two thousand souls anxious to listen to Democratic doctrine. His speech was characteristic of the man. Strong in his conviction, just in his judgment, sound in his beliefs, this man whom we all respect, claimed the attention of a respectful people for more than half an hour. Replete in sound and convincing argument the speech went home to the hearts of his countrymen. Mr. McHenry then introduced Hon. John S. Rhea, speaker of the day, and Democratic Elector for the State at large. In Mr. Rhea, the people were not deceived; they expected a great speech and he met their expectations. A descendant of a line of statesmen and patriots himself an order of force and ability, he held the attentive ear of that large audience for nearly two hours. He began by showing that Democrats could turn their own rascals out. He showed that in all the race and stealings of Republican office holders, not one had been treated to a touch of the law as had Mr. Tate. He condemned unfaithfulness to official trust in the Democratic party, and did not uphold it in Republicans. His exposition of the tariff was simple, plain and convincing. His review of the personnel of the nominees of each party brought forth round after round of applause. He closed his very excellent speech by a tribute to woman's power in politics, which was beautiful, ornate and classical. All in all, it was a great effort and pronounced by many, the best speech made here in many years.

Congressman Montgomery was on hand, and made a telling speech in the interest of the county candidates. He reviewed the Mills bill and showed that because that bill placed a few articles on the free list and reduced the tariff taxes from 47 per cent. to 40 per cent., was no reason why it should be characterized as a free trade measure. He said that the Republicans had so much to say about Tate's defection that he had taken some pains to get up a list of Republican defectors before he left Washington, and he unrolled a list of closely written names ten yards long and representing over ten millions of dollars. Mr. Montgomery's speech was made entirely in the interest of the party, and he never once referred to his candidacy for re-election to Congress.

At the close of Mr. Montgomery's speech, Mr. McHenry said that an Ohio county man had made the first speech, an Ohio county man, Hon. E. D. Walker, would pronounce the benediction. This witty, as well as convincing speaker, never appeared to better advantage than in his short speech on this occasion. He reviewed the history of the Federalist, Whig, Know-Nothing and Abolitionist parties and showed how the Democratic party had attended their respective funerals, and now was getting ready to pronounce the benediction over the remains of the Republican party. His admonition to the Democrats to do to the election and vote for Taylor and Wilson was received by cheers and repeated applause. As the sun was slowly sinking toward the western horizon, the well pleased crowd of Democrats dispersed, feeling that Ohio county was strongly Democratic, and would give a good majority now and in November.

Mr. McHenry and Mr. Rhea spoke at McHenry Friday night to a large and enthusiastic crowd. Both speeches were good and much appreciated. Mr. Rhea left next day for Princeton.

Bandanas were in demand. The procession was two miles long. Ohio county Democrats feel better. Vote for Taylor and Wilson Monday. The cannonading was heard at McHenry.

A flag used in the late war hung over Market Street.

The great crowd was in a good humor all the time.

The various Democratic clubs wore appropriate badges.

Beaver Dam did herself great credit in making up the parade.

Many said Rhea made the best speech they ever heard.

Mr. Rhea's tribute to woman's influence in politics was simply grand.

The flag of the Rockport Club hung over the speaker's stand during the day.

A prominent Republican said it was a field day for Democracy and no doubt about it.

The managers of the lunch stand fed people faster than ever fed before in Hartford.

Several houses in town were appropriately decorated with flags, bunting and bandanas.

The ladies of Beaver Dam, presented Mr. Rhea with several bouquets as he stepped from the train.

The free lunch was a surprise to many of the people from the country, but a pleasant one nevertheless.

Mr. Rhea's speech was courteous and respectful to the Republicans, and no one could take offense at it.

The large flag belonging to the Democracy of Fordville hung to the right of the speaker's stand.

Vote for Taylor and Wilson, said Mr. Walker. We will, came from a thousand strong and many voices.

The committee on entertainment deserve great credit for the efficient manner in which they performed their work.

Several Republicans were in the crowd, but did not enjoy the occasion so well as when their beloved Billy O. Bradley was here.

Mr. Montgomery's speech was a good one for the county Democracy. He never once referred to what he had done, nor did he mention his candidacy for re-election.

The drink that Mr. Rhea used during his speech, was placed on the stand in a clear crystalline glass and not in a "gold lined silver cup." A prominent citizen of Rockport drank of it and found it pure water.

The Beaver Dam Democrats tied a roster on a 'coon and placed them on the top of the band wagon. The roster looked mildly contented as the procession passed through the town, the 'coon of course was dead.

A large caricature hung just behind the speaker's stand. It represented a rich, boned manufacturer on one side standing near his palatial residence holding in his hand a jug of "free whisky," on the other side was represented a farmer near his log cabin demanding of the other man "free clothing" instead of the free whisky, which he had been offered. Mr. Rhea referred to it as representing the real difference between the two parties on the tariff question. The Republican platform offering free whisky, and the Democratic platform demanding a reduction of the tariff. The picture was designed and executed by C. R. Martin and Lem McHenry.

Notice.

At my farm two miles N. W. of Equality, on Friday, August 24th, I will sell to the highest bidder all of my stock and farming implements, consisting of two mares, two mules, four and three years old, one sucking colt, five milk cows, twenty head of young cattle, a large herd of fine sheep, and a good lot of sheep. The farming tools are such as all farmers need: a wagon, sulky plow, cultivators, Acme harrow, mower and reapers, one and two horse plows, double-shovels, jumping-shovels, sulky hay rake, and all kinds of smaller implements. Also I will sell all of my house plunder, such as bedding, chairs, tables, parlor and kitchen furniture. My present crop of corn, of 25 acres, and a large amount of oats and hay will also be sold. My farm I will rent to the highest bidder, to be payable in money.

TERMS OF SALE.

All amounts under five dollars cash. Five dollars and over, twelve months time with interest from date of sale. Good security will be required.

Come one and all, don't miss a good chance to save money.

Respectfully,
B. T. FOLEYHART.

DIED.

TAYLOR.—Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, consort of Blackston Taylor, deceased, died on Thursday, July 26, at the residence of her grand-son, W. F. Leach. She resided with her son, John H. Taylor, near Liberty Church, and was on a short visit when she was taken sick. She lived about 24 hours after she was taken sick. Antsey leaves a large train of relatives, who are among the best people of the county.

PRENTICE.

EDITORS HERALD: I take the present opportunity to give your readers a few of the happenings of this vicinity I am a boy about 30 years old, not high but nor very well posted in politics.

We have had a big revival of Democracy under the soothing influences of that Republican farce, the tariff. It produced Democrats as if by magic. It caused a good crowd to assemble here to listen to Hons. R. P. Hocker and Jesse S. Williams, who were here by invitation to address the people. After the speaking there was a good sized old-fashioned Democratic club formed.

The Republicans met shortly afterward and formed a small Republican club. Mr. Milligan spoke and was followed by Dan Tracy in a very lengthy speech of at least 20 minutes, counting vacancy and all. Now, Mr. Editor, as I said before, I don't know much about the tariff, but they say it is very good on the necessities of life, but death to luxuries, such as bed-bugs and fleas, also silks, diamonds and Republicans. I thought I would try a bottle of it on an old cow that has two teats spoiled, and a good backed horse; I will also sprinkle a little on my turnip patch. They say the Republicans have covered all the necessities of life about 47 inches deep with it, and swear it will produce a double crop; but I believe the Democrats want to scrape off about 7 inches to see if it won't come up better. Now we farmers generally cover our necessities about three inches and think that is a plenty.

The Republicans also say the tariff is a preventative—keeps out foreign pauper clothes. Now they need not bother about that, because we sell them the cotton to make their old clothes—now that ought to raise the ambition of every American citizen. We also sell them the meat and bread they eat while they make them.

Now, if we have the coal, iron, cotton, timber, bread, meat, and everything else necessary for life, liberty and happiness, we need not be afraid of a help-less pauper. If they come over to throw too thick we will get Congress to throw a little tariff on them, especially the Chinese.

Mr. Editor, have you taken a good look at the Republican platform this year; they have two barrels to stand on: a barrel of money and a barrel of whiskey. I am afraid the head to the whiskey barrel will break through and drown some of them. You know the Democrats have about 100,000,000 acres of reclaimed land to stand on, beside numerous other things.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have a host of good Republican friends, and I want you, and every other good Democratic newspaper editor in the land to insist that they get off of those barrels that have wrecked so many good lives, and come to a solid foundation. I am glad to read of so many in every state coming over. Keep the doors of your Democratic clubs open day and night; give them a hearty welcome, and point them to the Declaration of Independence, penned by the hero of Democracy, Thomas Jefferson, which gives you life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Wanted.

A man of good character, industrious, and wide-awake, who can furnish a horse and harness, may obtain profitable employment by applying in person to GROSS WILLIAMS, 31-3t Hartford, Ky.

The pride of Kentucky—Mammoth Cave—is beyond the description of tongue or pen, one of those indescribable things that can only be appreciated when seen. No amount of eloquence can paint the awful solemnity of the cave, the grandeur of the pits and domes, showing action of water that has been putting in its work for decades, the harmony of Martha Washington's statue, illusion of the Star Chamber, wonderful reverberations and echoes of Echo River, and the interesting blind white fish peculiar to Mammoth Cave. The Cave Hotel is open all the year. The temperature in the cavern never varies, so visitors have the privilege of seeing the cave at any season. 24m3

CHINN.—To the wife of J. B. Chinn, on the 24th, a boy.

CHAPMAN.—To the wife of W. T. Chapman on the 23rd, a fine boy. Pap is happy and mother doing well.

GUFFY.—To the wife of E. D. Guffy, Monday, 30th inst., a daughter, said by its father to weigh about 25 pounds. The father smiles at every one he sees, and as he walks he sings:

"Ring out, wild bells—and tattle ones, too—
Ring out the lover's moon,
Ring out the little slips and sorbs,
Ring in the bobs and spoon;
Ring out the nurse, ring in the nurse,
Ring in the milk and water;
Away with paper, pens, and ink—
My daughter, oh, my daughter!"
